Navigating the School Year: A Counselor's guide for parents

“The way we talk to our children becomes their inner voice.” - Peggy O'Mara

What are we seeing in Children Today?

- Low frustration tolerance - “I want it now” mindset; inability to handle No, failure, or discomfort
- Externalization of blame - Difficulty taking responsibility; quick to blame teachers, peers, system
- Emotional fragility with poor coping skills - Small setbacks feel overwhelming
- Validation dependence - Self-worth tied to praise, marks, social media, or peer approval
- Authority confusion - Mixed messages at home vs school → “Who should I listen to?”
- Manipulative coping patterns - “Divide & rule” between parents; testing boundaries constantly
- Lack of respect for effort and process - Only outcomes matter → leads to anxiety & shortcuts
- Unsafe emotional environments at home - Fear of judgment, comparison, or dismissal, children stop sharing

How Can We Be The Parents They need?

- Consistency between both parents - Unity = security
- Emotional safety, not just physical comfort - “Can I fail and still be accepted?”
- Clear boundaries with warmth - Not strict vs lenient, but firm + understanding
- Modeling behavior (not just instructing) - Respect, emotional control, communication
- Delayed gratification training - Let them wait, struggle, and earn
- Respect for school authority - If you undermine teachers, children lose structure everywhere
- Stay Involved - Regularly check E-Care, Diary, Be aware of their day
